

IMPORTANT: HAVE YOUR STUDENTS IDENTIFY A CREATIVE COMMONS LICENSE!

When creating your lesson Planets, we appreciate teachers who create their own materials for others. This document reminds you of your rights as creator of the video.

You already have to go to the video website and use their video, but you also need to know a number of important things:
<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/>

Always give credit to the original creator, so they know that you are not a copy of their work but something unique. Attribution is the key to the commons and will be required for all items licensed in any of the video, audio or the lesson by us. We will, therefore, remove any plan for which attribution has not been given.

There is also an important video license, which is not a license. There is a video guide for teachers on this site, which will explain the requirements for our commons. It is "How To Use a Video Guide to Add to your lesson plan" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7m3111111111>

For more information about our commons, visit:
<http://www.creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/4.0/>

