

Like many Victorians I grew up 'fire ready': recognising the risks and always being prepared. We continue to understand more than ever about bushfires with each season; the danger, the threats and the challenges.

My job involves risk analysis and management, complex budget management, logic and problem solving for some of the Country Fire Authority's largest projects, all focussed on improving our service delivery to the community. Maths allows us to optimise our response times,

Maths is more than a
Number