

I am more than a number

It's not exactly a natural progression to go from studying a maths degree to a nightly television program, but Letters and Numbers has given me the amazing opportunity to share the wonderful world of maths with the wider community.

People often have a perception of what a mathematician should be. I like to challenge that stereotype.

My name is